

ARCHIVAL STUDIES CERTIFICATE

The College of Communication & Information Sciences at The University of Alabama provides a program of study that leads to an ACHE-recognized Certificate in Archival Studies. This certificate offers a comprehensive grounding in the academic discipline of archival studies, and an understanding of the theory, art, and practice that informs archival work. Students have the opportunity to develop competencies for work with rare books, manuscripts, traditional records, and digital media.

Graduates of the certificate leave prepared for employment in academic, cultural, public, governmental, and corporate environments. Recent graduates are currently employed at leading institutions, including the Alabama Department of Archives and History (ADAH), the New York State Archives, the University of Washington, and Samford University.

Admissions

Applications are accepted from students pursuing graduate work in allied disciplines, or already possessing graduate degrees in related disciplines.

In addition to the minimum Graduate School admission requirements, to be considered for regular admission an application must include:

- Three (3) letters of recommendation; for applicants who have been in school in the last 5 years, at least two (2) letters must be academic references.

Students who do not meet these requirements, but who excel in other areas, may be considered for "Admission with Permission to Continue."

Students pursuing the MLIS should apply for admission to the archival studies concentration.

See the Admission Criteria section of this catalog for more information.
