COURSES FOR HONORS COLLEGE

Randall Research Scholars (RRS) Courses

RRS101 Randall Research Scholars Freshman Seminar 1
C, UH
Hours 4
Taken by first-year students in the Randall Research Scholars Program, this course provides an accelerated introduction that uses algorithmic thinking to develop computational artifacts. Open only to students admitted to the Randall Research Scholars Program. Computing proficiency is required for a passing grade in this course.

Computer Science, University Honors

RRS102 Randall Research Scholars Freshman Seminar 2
C, UH
Hours 4
Taken by first-year students in the Randall Research Scholars Program, this second freshman year course provides an accelerated introduction to additional computational techniques as well as project management techniques. Open only to students admitted to the Randall Research Scholars Program. Computing proficiency is required for a passing grade in this course.

Prerequisite(s): RRS 101 with a minimum grade of B.

Computer Science, University Honors

RRS201 Randall Research Scholars Sophomore Research Seminar 1
C, UH
Hours 3
Sophomore RRS research seminar where students work as undergraduate research assistants with faculty members on computational research projects. Computing proficiency is required for a passing grade in this course.

Prerequisite(s): Successful completion of RRS 102 with a minimum grade of B+.

Computer Science, University Honors

RRS202 Randall Research Scholars Sophomore Research Seminar 2

University Honors Program (UH) Courses

UH100 Honors Year One: Honors Connections
UH
Hours 2
Honors Connections introduces first-year students to the UA Honors College experience. The aim of this course is to aid each student in finding and interrogating their place within the Honors College, the University of Alabama and the greater community. Students will learn and practice the key concepts of engaged scholarship, including critical and creative thinking, ethical and empathic dialogue, and collaborative and inclusive leadership. Students will gain a practical understanding of the Honors College and their role within it, while also building relationships that foster continued participation in the kinship of scholars.

UH102 Freshman Common Book Experience

UH

Hours 1

The Freshman Common Book Experience involves our communal discussion of issues raised in the selected book for the incoming freshman class. The overall theme of the course is to introduce students to the seminar experience – one of the core principles of an Honors education. The skills that are practiced in a seminar provide the opportunity to grow in the timeless method of learning where deep, critical reading is followed by a discussion of texts. Further, the seminar provides the opportunity for students to practice speaking about and forming critiques of the ideas encountered. In a seminar, there is no final authority on matters of discussion. Instead, the purpose is learning to be a better critical thinker, listener, and interpreter through the seminar experience itself.

UH103 Honors Action

UH

Hours 1

In this six day, one-credit hour introductory course, students are immersed in the foundations of the Honors College and community engagement. Students attend a daily lecture series followed by small discussions. The guest lectures and discussions address issues such as poverty, cultural capital, engaged citizenship, and community engagement. In addition to the lecture series and small group discussions, students participate in daily community-engaged projects at local public schools. The Honors College common book, in addition to supplementary resources as provided, is assigned reading for this course and will link to the course themes from the lectures and service projects.

UH110 Honors Year One: Honors Engagement

UH

Hours 2

Honors Engagement introduces first-year students who have completed their first semester of study to the UA Honors College experience. The aim of this course is to aid each student in finding and interrogating their place within the Honors College, the University of Alabama and the greater community. Students will learn and practice the key concepts of engaged scholarship, including critical and creative thinking, ethical and empathetic dialogue, and collaborative and inclusive leadership. Students will gain a practical understanding of the Honors College and their role within it, while also building relationships that foster continued participation in the kinship of scholars. Instruction will include lecture, guest speakers, and small group discussions with Honors College student mentors. Student reading, writing, and reflection will be emphasized and connected to the examination of the Honors College and wider academic communities.

UH121 Leadership Lessons from Jazz

FA, UH

Hours 1

Through Frank Barrett’s Yes to the Mess and Wynton Marsalis’ Moving to Higher Ground, we will explore examples of how the world’s best, most admired leaders not only survive and thrive in today’s rapidly changing world, they create and innovate by leading their teams using the same principles and philosophies that jazz musicians do. We will explore how these principles, philosophies and actions, at the core of jazz music and culture, can help you become a better, more successful leader, and to be more stable in an increasingly unstable world. Experiences with the actual music are a bonus, but at the same time, are necessary and integral to understanding how these concepts apply to non-musical environments.

UH130 The Legacy of Kings: Judeo-Christian Kingship in Pop Culture
HU, UH

Hours 3

This course explores the Ascension Story, an adaptation of Joseph Campbell’s “Hero’s Journey” through an in-depth comparative analysis between a) Judeo-Christian monarchical concepts as recorded in the Hebrew/Christian sacred texts (primarily 1 Samuel-2 Chronicles, prophetic books, and gospels) and b) Final Fantasy XV, a 2016 video game that reimagines those same kingship narratives. Topics addressed within the Ascension Story include the Trials of a King, Kingly Relationships, a King’s Responsibility, and a King’s Deliverance of Order to Chaos. Concepts of ancient near-eastern kingship, Levitical priesthood, religious prophecy, and messianic hope will be fully analyzed. The course addresses questions of moral virtue and leadership ethics in the humanistic fields of religious literature, theological studies, and secular and sacral kingship archetypes. This course also examines the broad implications that sacral kingship/leadership has on cultural identity, with attention to Egyptian, Mesopotamian, and Jewish narratives. Rather than primarily measuring proficiency in writing, this course emphasizes the history and appreciation of sacred texts and ancient near-eastern kingship narratives.

UH140 Narratives of Change
HU, UH

Hours 3

This course will explore the history of storytelling and how stories and storytelling connect people, create cultural understanding, and effect change. This course will take a global, analytic perspective on storytelling and American narratives. We will develop a vocabulary for discussing the relationships between narratives and social change and analyze written and oral narratives and the cultural and historical contexts that surround them. We will concentrate specifically on narratives of marginalized writers in American literature, various narrative forms of 20th century and modern American literature, and the Honors College Common Book. We will also explore how we shape and interact with narratives in our own lives, examining the question, “Who are you?”.

Prerequisite(s) with concurrency: UH 100 OR UH 110 OR BCE 102 OR UFE 101 OR BUI 101 OR GBA 171 OR GBA 172 OR IDMD 101 OR RRS 101 OR (EPIC 101 AND 102)

UH141 Work, Play, and Meaning
HU, UH

Hours 3

This course explores how work and leisure influence our everyday lives. Are we governed by the necessity of work, while we pursue momentary havens of leisure? Or, is it the other way around? Is it because of the necessity of leisure in our lives that we pursue work at all? When are we most ourselves? From Nietzsche’s The Birth of Tragedy which explored the antagonism between the Apollonian and Dionysian spirits, to Max Weber’s The Protestant Work Ethic and the Spirit of Capitalism, to modern movies such as Office Space, the tensions between, not just work and leisure, but ultimately meaning as well, provide productive spaces for exploration.

UH142 The American Working Class
UH

Hours 2

This course will delve into two accounts of what it is like to live in the American working class: Nickel and Dimed (Barbara Ehrenreich), which provides an eye-opening, first-hand account of what it is like to hold a minimum-wage job in three American cities in the late 1990s, and Deer Hunting with Jesus (Joe Bageant), in which the author uses humor in his account of what he learned since moving back to his small hometown of Winchester, Virginia after living in other parts of the country. The purpose of this course is to get students to think outside of the binary (that you have to be liberal or conservative to care about issue x) and to provoke classroom discussions in which students are able to process the subjects and themes that the texts reveal and to learn how others’ lived experiences may have influenced their beliefs and perception.

Prerequisite(s) with concurrency: UH 100 OR UH 110 OR BCE 102 OR UFE 101 OR BUI 101 OR GBA 171 OR GBA 172 OR IDMD 101 OR RRS 101 OR (EPIC 101 AND 102)

UH143 Language, Society, and Transformation
UH

Hours 3

This course is an introduction to the study of the influence of society and language on each other as well as on individuals. Students will explore the role of language in society and in their own personal development, paying particular attention to the influence of learning an additional language – before and during experiences in other communities. That is, students will reflect on how acquiring another language may change them and impact their own identities. Additionally, students will further refine their understanding of culture and knowledge via discussions. Throughout the semester, this course will strive to understand the impact of varied linguistic experiences in other countries and communities on personal development and on society.

UH144 The Language of the Blues

Hours 1

From the Mississippi Delta to Memphis to Chicago then to London and back, The Blues are a potent means of communication, a powerful and persuasive connection. They are a language. Through them, artists and their audiences found a distinct voice that could share and engage emotion, meaning, time, place, change and identity. Students listen to and examine the communicative power of The Blues, and the Blues 'language', what they say, who says it, who hears it, what they hear, and how meaning is created and taken. Students will listen to blues alongside a wide range of readings, including Wittgenstein's Language Games, Foucault on how power is found in everyday language, James Baldwin's Sonny's Blues and Zora Neale Hurston's Their Eyes Were Watching God.

Prerequisite(s) with concurrency: UH 100 OR UH 110 OR BCE 102 OR UFE 101 OR BUI 101 OR GBA 171 OR GBA 172 OR IDMD 101 OR RRS 101 OR (EPIC 101 AND 102)

UH145 The Chemistry of Baking

Hours 1

This course will cover the fundamentals of baking science, focusing on the chemistry and biology concepts interlaced within the art of baking. Students will be introduced to the foundational chemistry and reactions of macromolecules in the baking process, with an emphasis on the characteristics and contributions of ingredients, temperature, techniques, and flavorings. Critical interactions between molecules and component behaviors will be covered, as well as essential process features such as heat transfer and duration. The students will employ critical thinking in the evaluation of the technical and scientific aspects of baking (i.e. heat transfer, reactions, quality control), and creative skills in the practice of baking or troubleshooting and development required of a baker. Students will learn about social/personal and professional baking, considering creative ideology and personal value versus scale and consistency. The cultural influences on baking will be integrated, and a perspective on the geographical relevance of available/conventional ingredients will be discussed.

UH180 Mosaic: An Experimental Multimedia Project

Hours 3

An experimental magazine class that produces, from scratch, an online magazine, website and social media. Students can specialize in writing, editing, graphic design, photography/videography and/or website or social media. The class also helps both on and off campus organizations with multimedia projects that need such expertise as a support service. Students also focus on examining the nature of the communication functions of their creative work with other Mosaic students and with non-creative sources and subjects they interact with in their work. Student staff will work with the aid of UA staff/faculty instructors and advisers.

Prerequisite(s) with concurrency: UH 100 OR UH 110 OR BCE 102 OR UFE 101 OR BUI 101 OR GBA 171 OR GBA 172 OR IDMD 101 OR RRS 101 OR (EPIC 101 AND 102)

UH200 Life as a Scholar

Hours 3

This course takes "the idea of a scholar" as its theme. Students will examine definitions of education and the university, contrasts and conflicts for students and scholars within academic life, and the "life of the mind" conceptualization of higher education as preparation for lifelong learning. These themes will be explored through detailed readings and class discussions. Moreover, it includes a strong component of comparing and contrasting our readings and class discussions with scholarly life at the University of Alabama, both current and historical.

UH205 Social Foundations of Community Engagement
HU, UH
Hours 3
As a “prelude” to service learning, students will understand the philosophical structure of “public goods” (e.g., education, health care, housing, etc.) and how they relate to specific needs in public spaces which are used for the betterment of communities. Students will explore the possible causes of political, educational, social, and economic inequalities as well as the benefits, responsibilities and limits of the service response to public problems. The course provides a basic understanding of what the purpose of “public goods” are and how society actualizes these currencies.

UH207 Classics & Asian Culture
UH
Hours 3
This course introduces students to some of the classic texts of Eastern Civilization. The particular focus of this course will be Ancient China. Students will cover the origin and development of the Chinese intellectual tradition; in particular, the ethical and politics topics that can be grouped under “the way” (dao, #), as this was the central concern of writers and thinkers in the period. Specific topics to be discussed include: “Is human nature fundamentally good or fundamentally bad?”; “How can we best achieve an enduring social order?”; “What is the shape of a life well lived?”; “Is the development of civilization conducive to human flourishing?” . Figures to be studied include Sunzi, Kongzi (Confucius), Mozi, Mengzi (Mencius), Laozi, Zhuangzi, Xunzi, Han Feizi, and Sima Qian. A primary goal of the course is to expose students to the richness, vitality, and plurality of the Ancient Chinese intellectual tradition.

Hours 3
What's next for you after graduation? Is it graduate or professional school or will you be headed into the workforce? Do you have a plan for how to develop and market your most successful personal and professional self? This course will provide students with the knowledge and resources needed to prepare for life after their undergraduate academic career. Students will explore concepts of career readiness, articulate their personal strengths/weaknesses/values, set and pursue personal and professional goals, and develop a strong professional portfolio. This course also seeks to help students understand the importance of personal branding and networking, effective communication, collaboration with an array of persons and backgrounds, emotional intelligence, and leadership.

UH211 Power
SB, UH
Hours 3
This course will focus on the notion of cultural and social power. Course materials will investigate historical and contemporary negotiations of power and how power is disseminated within cultural contexts. Students will be asked to critically examine how individual power and systemic power operate in their own lives. This critique will certainly begin with an examination of the students own identity and agency within their contexts. The course is concerned primarily with social structures, processes, institutions and how they hold and disseminate power.

UH222 Art for Life's Sake
FA, UH

Hours 3
The Art for Life's Sake course is an exploration of the artistic process and its application in everyday life. Our primary goals are to study, communicate, and increase the practical application and implementation of art philosophy, core concepts, and principles of creation into both academics and everyday life; synthesizing creativity, open-mindedness, authenticity, and innovation into a holistic, mindful approach, with a concerted effort to increase not only human technological and physical progress, but also psychological freedom, mental fitness and general well-being. Art is a process of exploration, externalized. Human beings are inherently artistic. Therefore, any human activity can be expressed artfully. Our goal is, simply put: to become aware of this phenomenon and learn to practice it in all aspects of our lives.

UH223 Books: Past, Present, and Future
FA, UH

Hours 3
What is the book's place in history, and what does the future hold for it? In this transdisciplinary course, students will investigate the close relationship between major world religions and the bookbinding industry, the impact that innovations in printing and binding technology have had on literacy rates throughout the world, the role of women in bookbinding through history compared to women working with books today, and what the rise in digital books, audiobooks, and eReaders mean for the publishing industry today and future of the traditional book. Students will also have some hands-on instruction in bookbinding and will create East Asian accordions, Japanese stab bindings, Coptic bindings, and Ethiopian bindings. Throughout the semester, students will be assigned readings over the history, present, and future of the book, leading to a final research paper that speaks to the student's specific area of interest.

UH230 UA Honors in New Zealand

UH

Hours 3

Students will examine contemporary New Zealand neighborhoods and communities by purposefully employing 'engaged' and interactive discussions and conversations with (some of the) New Zealanders they encounter each day from a wide range of demographics, i.e. an ethnographic/communications approach. Students will rely on an instructor-generated list of talking points as a general guide. Classes will assemble most, but not all, days in New Zealand to debrief and discuss the day's conversations with the goal of (a) progressively getting a better understanding (than tourists) of New Zealand community life and (b) progressively getting better at asking people from another culture valuable (instead of predictable) questions and assessing, and following up on, answers. Students will also interact with New Zealand students and academic faculty to help build their understanding of neighborhoods and communities.

UH232 UA Honors in Ghana

UH

Hours 3

Ghana was the first country south of the Sahara to gain independence from British colonial rule and it continues to play a leading role in African development and prosperity to this day. This study abroad course functions as a broad transdisciplinary and multidisciplinary approach to the study of the culture, history, economics, politics, sociology and the natural environment of Ghana using innovation as a connective device. The class highlights Ghana's forward-thinking and progressive past, using the nation as a placeholder for both the future potential and current realities of homegrown growth on the continent. Students will experience Ghana's progress, seeing first-hand how technological innovations are affecting social and political realities across its width and breadth, and also have the opportunity to play a role in its development as they work alongside local university students in Industry and Innovation Unit at the University of Cape Coast to help develop creative solutions to existing problems. As a bonus, the course will provide a number of vectors for study and learning in various areas of Ghana; including visits to museums, historical sites, African markets, villages, cultural centers and lectures by Ghanaian professors, professionals, practitioners and parliamentarians.

Prerequisite(s) with concurrency: UH 200 OR UH 205 OR BUI 102 OR GBA 271 OR GBA 272 OR IDMD 102 OR RRS 201 OR (UFE 201 AND UFE 202) OR (EPIC 201 AND EPIC 202)

UH233 UA Honors in Scotland

UH

Hours 3

Students will examine Scottish neighborhoods and communities, purposefully employing 'engaged' and interactive discussions and conversations with locals from a wide range of demographics, i.e. an ethnographic approach. These conversations, or interviews, will result in general class discussion and writing to examine cultural differences, place them in context, and develop increasingly productive approaches to future conversations. Regular debriefing sessions will include all students recounting encounters and finding value in them, and students critiquing each other's reports so that, as a group, they become better at knowing what to ask and how to ask it and at interpreting and understanding what they hear in answers.

UH234 UA Honors in Egypt
HU

Hours 3

The modern nation of Egypt encompasses a sharp juxtaposition of modernity and antiquity. Moreover, the land is awash with the vestiges of Arab and Kemetic influences. They are found in the history, in the architecture, the ruins, and most importantly, embodied within the people. In this way, Egypt is a study in conflict and contact and change and continuity. While recognizing the importance of Arab rule in Egypt from the 7th century, this course will focus on the contributions of Africans to the fabric of ancient and modern Egypt. This seminar will provide students with an induction to Egyptian history, culture, and society from the earliest pottery producing cultures of the Neolithic Period (starting c. 8000 BC) through the early development of the Egyptian state (c. 3000 BC), to the Islamic conquest (639 CE). This long-term perspective will highlight the variability of Egyptian histories and cultures, allowing a comparative study of issues such as state formation, religious change, and imperialism.

UH243 The King James Bible
HU, UH

Hours 3

Often considered the most influential book ever published, the King James Version of the Bible (1611) is a monumental cultural achievement. It encapsulates the Renaissance spirit of eloquence, and four hundred years after its publication, it remains the most frequently used translation of the Bible in the English-speaking world, especially in America. Given the historical, political, literary, and cultural prominence of this translation, this course takes a transdisciplinary approach to understanding how the book came into existence and what accounts for its popularity. The course begins by studying the complex history of how this translation came to be commissioned, who the translators were, how the translation was accomplished, and the politics involved in the translation. The course then critically studies the structures and styles of the KJB, with particular focus on examining genres and performing close readings of texts, as well as considering the political work often attributed to the text (i.e., how the book has been used to enslave and emancipate enslaved people, how it has been used to create and maintain patriarchy, etc). The course ends by paying particular attention to the history of the KJB in the United States, as we discuss the so-called “KJB-Only Movement.” Therefore, rather than studying Jewish or Christian theology, this course aims to introduce students to issues surrounding the material book history of the KJB, its immense literary aesthetic, and its cultural influence.

UH244 Women: Antiquity to Modernity
HU, UH

Hours 3

This course examines the impact of the ancient world on the life of modern women. More specifically, this course examines the evolution of women's life, starting from ancient Greece and following its trajectory to the modern day. Ancient Greece, known for catapulting civilization to higher levels with its invention of democracy, political science, philosophy, the codification of laws and the professionalization of medicine among other achievements, shaped the world, for better or worse, as it is known today. This same culture, however, has excluded women from public life since the 5th century BC and has set the stage for pioneer women in the West to combat the perception of females as inferior beings and to struggle to enter higher education and public life and, eventually, gain voting rights. This socio-political framework helps to explore the gender ideologies that have impacted women's life since antiquity, the changes in the perception of women in the course of history, the origin and development of ideas about women's body and mind, as well as as the role of race in regard to these issues. Understanding the gamut of theories and attitudes toward women, students can develop a better grasp of what women want today, where they are headed, what obstacles are still standing in their way and how they can overcome them to achieve their goals.

UH245 The Hero's Journey
UH

Hours 3

The heart of this course will be the study of the archetype of the hero's quest in the mythology and literature of adventure. Students will study and discuss theories and practices of Adventure from a variety of disciplinary perspectives (literature, film, sociology, history, psychology, philosophy). They will read classic adventure novels such as J.R.R. Tolkien's The Hobbit, as well as stories that challenge the very idea of 'adventure', such as Samuel Beckett's "The Expelled." Through a transdisciplinary lens, students will analyze representations of identity, belief, and class in these novels, supplementing the readings with contemporary films like Wes Anderson's Moonrise Kingdom and Werner Herzog's Grizzly Man.

UH246 Recreating Africa: Diasporic Imaginings of Race and Space
UH

Hours 3

What does it mean to be African? Black? Are the terms bound by racial, ethnic, or spatial limitations? Who possesses the rights of access to the cultural products and expressions unique to the continent and her descendants? In this course, students will examine how the concept of Africa, as both home and identity, is recreated and imagined through a variety of disciplines and sources (history, sociology, religion, art, media studies, anthropology, psychology, linguistics). During lectures and weekly discussions, and through words, pictures, sounds, and live performance, they will examine objects and stories that collectively make up contemporary expressions of global Africanity. Students will explore questions of home, identity, Afropolitanism, continuity, appropriation, authenticity, historical memory, and creolization using examples from academic scholars, literary figures, and popular culture. Looking and listening closely, students will observe the wide range of African cultural practices present within literature, film, music, artwork, communication styles, dress, and beauty standards to develop a critical understanding of not only how these practices continue to unfold on the African continent, but how they are also transformed by and endure throughout its many diasporas.

UH247 Deeply Rooted: Detangling Racial Politics of Black Hair in America
UH

Hours 3

Twisted locs, braids, bantu knots, cornrows, and wigs are but some of the many aesthetic practices introduced globally by African people. Historically, African hairstyles were coded and complex and one's hair could convey significant personal information, including a person's marital status, wealth, rank, age, religion, and ethnic identity. This course traces the origins of African hair from the continent, where it stood as a marker of culture and prestige, to the Americas, where black hair has often been derided and devalued in a society where European notions of beauty are the societal standards. Students will explore the contemporary social construction of "Black Hair" and the manner in which hairstyles often signify, resist, and conform to societal norms.

UH251 The Legislative Process

Hours 3

This course asks “What” the normal legislative process was and is currently; “How” societal changes will affect current and future law making; and “Why” did we get into this condition? This course will take into consideration public demands, business interests, racial equality, and the working-class poor as influences on law making. The class will discuss immigration, abortion, taxes, health care, and other “Hot Button” issues faced by elected officials. Changing technology in business and buying habits of the public are some of the factors affecting the law-making process. The class will discuss and discover the “what, how, and why” of the political polarization and the extreme divisiveness of social and business issues.

UH253 Law and Popular Culture

Hours 3

This course will examine the relationship between the reality of the law and its depictions in television shows and films. Students will focus on the facts and the fiction of the legal process. This course will start by examining the role and position of law in both historical and modern societies and move from there into the examination of different legal institutions and study how these facets of the law are represented in movies and television shows. Additionally, students will examine the opposite perspective: how does popular culture, and in particular law as portrayed in moving images, affect real law?.

UH263 Sustainability

UH

Hours 3

This course will introduce students to the breadth of Sustainability as a subject and will serve as a vehicle for further student research into specific topics within the context of Sustainability. The challenges faced now - both the existential threat of climate change and the unprecedented opportunities for transformation that threat offers - flow directly from the urgent need to understand what it means to be responsibly human. The nature of these questions and concerns are fundamental to all of us and cut across all disciplines and all courses of study. Regardless of their majors, this seminar will strengthen students' ability to recognize and appreciate the power of connection, and will encourage them to be empowered by complexity, rather than overwhelmed by it.

UH281 Writers and Revolutions
HU, UH

Hours 3

How do writers, and journalists-as-writers, see revolutions (some well known, some not so much) and what role do they play in them? Students will examine writers (some well known, some not so much), their lives, their texts, their words, rhetoric and arguments, address their effects on revolutionary and/or cultural change, and set these writers and their works within their broader economic, social, cultural, and political contexts. Are they archivists or activists? Do they help trigger and/or sustain revolutions, or help understand them, or both? And what have they left to help understand modern political and cultural pressures that hint at radicalism or revolution?

UH282 Imagining Revolution
HU, UH

Hours 3

This course surveys various examples of the revolutionary and radical imagination. Instead of comparing different historical revolutions, this course will be exploring the different ways that people have imagined, in a revolutionary sense, alternative worlds. What does restless discontent with what-is look like in literature and art? In philosophy? In politics? In religion? In race and gender? By tracing the contours of such thoughts, students can begin, first, to see the power of critique and ask questions such as: Critique what? Critique why? Critique how? And secondly, students can begin to see the power of the speculative imagination and its role in creating a more desirable, and just, world.

UH284 Global Citizenship
UH

Hours 3

Global Citizenship encompasses the knowledge of nations, cultures, and societies in a complex, interdependent, and changing world. Introducing students to historical and contemporary global challenges of citizenship, this course explores comparative arenas of interaction, interdependence, and inequity among diverse geographical, social, political, and economic systems. The class will investigate questions of citizenship, membership, and belonging, asking, "What does it mean to be a citizen?" "What is entitled to the rights, privileges and responsibilities of membership within the citizenry?" "What are the differential effects and impact of globalization in its myriad sub-forms – cultural, social, economic and political – on notions of global citizenship?" To answer these questions the course focuses on a number of distinct but related social and political issues: citizenship, nationalism, migration, and cosmopolitanism.

UH301 Honors College Scholars Creative & Innovative Inquiry

UH

Hours 3

What is a scholar? Honors Connections/Engagement (UH 100) attempts to answer this question by introducing first-year students to the UA Honors College experience. UH 200, Life as a Scholar, explores the topic by interrogating the relationship of higher education to lifelong learning. UH 301, HCS Creative and Innovative Inquiry, builds on earlier curricular experiences by integrating and applying the ontological and epistemological modalities of Honors education in wholly new ways. Students are led through an exploration of diverse forms of inquiry and ways of knowing surrounding problems and projects of academic and cultural significance. The course explores these topics through a transdisciplinary, creative, and deeply personal lens, focusing on inquiry as connection, provocation, critical wondering, investigation, reflection, representation, and transformation. Using these understandings of inquiry as a foundation, students will develop research proposals around ideas and questions which, given often abstract and multilayered complexities, are not easily explained solely by traditional or western forms of inquiry.

What does it mean to think in a transdisciplinary way? What does it mean to be transdisciplinary? How does a transdisciplinary approach to education and the world make you a better scholar? How does it make you a better person? By building from the knowledges gained in UH 100 and UH 200, this course will prepare students for future experiences such as capstone projects/theses, graduate school, and professional life by examining the philosophical foundations and justifications of transdisciplinarity, as well as its practical applications in life both inside, and outside, of academia. Transdisciplinarity is, at its root, a commitment to creative and bold problem solving. This course will prepare students for how to practice such skills after their undergraduate careers.

UH310 College in Media & Popular Culture

UH

Hours 3

This course examines representations of colleges and universities in media and popular culture. Using various forms of media including films, TV shows, novels, news outlets, trade publications, plays, podcasts, Ted Talks, music, etc., this course will examine topics including students, Greek life, athletics, faculty members, graduate school, and more to understand discourse regarding higher education in the United States from various disciplinary perspectives. The course considers the possibility that, beyond entertainment value, representations of college convey a perceived reality of what student and faculty life looks like as well as the status of higher education in the United States. This course will question those portrayals and discuss how they inform and/or miseducate various populations by comparing them with the everyday realities of students, faculty, and institutions in order to become more critical of the media and public messages students consume.

UH311 Stanley Kubrick and Human Nature

UH

Hours 3

Stanley Kubrick said in an interview for Full Metal Jacket that "truth is too multifaceted to be contained in a five line summary", but here's to trying. Stanley Kubrick, director of such notable films as 2001: A Space Odyssey, The Shining, and the aforementioned Full Metal Jacket, among others, was an inveterate reader who practically could not make a film until he was an expert on the subjects he was dealing with. As such, this course will take a similarly broad approach, drawing on theoretical works from philosophy, psychology, social criticism and others, to study the one true subject Kubrick was eternally a student of—human nature. Is there such a thing, and what features define it? Like Danny Torrance in The Shining, students will draw on knowledge from the past, present and, though they can't "shine", from potential futures, to work their way through the labyrinthian mystery that is the human race.

UH312 Fear and the American Consciousness

UH, W

Hours 3

This course seeks to answer two questions: “What do Americans fear, and what can we learn about American culture after studying that fear?” Americans have always, and perhaps now more than ever, maintained deep fear. Fear of the unknown. Of science. Of technology. Of others. Of terrorism. Of gun violence. Of viruses. Of each other. Answering such questions demands a transdisciplinary approach to fear. Therefore, students will use trauma theory, psychology, science, race theory, historical analysis, philosophy, rhetoric studies, sociology, film criticism, and gender theory to analyze fear from a variety of disciplines. The class is organized around a series of texts that depict and address American fears since the Great Depression, and students will be asked to analyze and then debate the causes of such fears. Writing proficiency is required for a passing grade in this course. A student who does not write with the skill normally required of an upper-division student will not earn a passing grade, no matter how well the student performs in other areas of the course.

UH323 Contemporary Book Arts

UH

Hours 3

This hands-on course provides an introduction to the concepts, aesthetics, and techniques of contemporary book arts. The class will explore fundamental elements of bookbinding and unique artistic book structures, and students will create work that has a narrative for the viewer. Students will discover a variety of contemporary artist book structures, develop basic hand skills, and consider how content and book structure work together in artists’ books. Assignments will be given to further students’ understanding of the book and its potential for artistic expression.

Hours 3

Carl Sagan wrote “If you wish to bake an apple pie from scratch, first you must create the universe.” The same might be said of “explaining” an artist’s work; one must understand the “universe” of ideas and experiences that “baked” the work from scratch. This is perhaps even more true of filmmakers, who work in a medium that inherently synthesizes knowledge from a vast array of fields. In this class students will try to figure out the recipes behind the works of Jordan Peele, Steve McQueen, and Satoshi Kon, three of the most interesting filmmakers in recent memory, by exploring ideas from across a spectrum of disciplines.

UH341 Origins of Western Thought—Modern Thought

UH, W

Hours 3

This course focuses on developments in Western thinking from the Renaissance to the present day. Authors to be studied will invariably change at the instructor’s discretion, but students should expect to read and become familiar with the works of Shakespeare, Descartes, Pascal, Swift, Hume, Austen, Darwin, Freud, and Woolf. Writing proficiency is required for a passing grade in this course. A student who does not write with the skill normally required of an upper-division student will not earn a passing grade, no matter how well the student performs in other areas of the course.

UH344 Myth and Reality in Espionage

UH

Hours 3

The seminar will follow the general themes of myth vs. reality in the world of espionage. Students shall focus on spy novels, possibly including the works of Rudyard Kipling, Somerset Maugham, Alan Furst, Graham Greene and John le Carre to develop the spy storyteller’s craft. The texts students shall read will grapple with the moral questions raised in espionage—the manipulation of other human beings, its justification for protecting the national interests of one’s country, the long-term corrosive effects of deceit and clandestinity on the soul of the spymaster, the role of the spy bureaucracy, and the attraction of the game of espionage for its own sake. The works of fiction will be contrasted with the true lives of master spies, as well as double agents—possibly including Dusko Popov, Kim Philby, Aldrich Ames, Robert Hanssen, and Jim Nicholson, posing the question whether the myth of espionage is stranger than the real thing.

UH346 Existentialism, Race, and Gender

UH, W

Hours 3

This course will survey not only some of the canonical authors of existential philosophy (e.g., Kierkegaard, Nietzsche, Sartre), but more importantly, read them in relation to other authors that are not traditionally included, yet who struggle with the problems of existence and, in turn, provide wonderfully rich insights into the human condition. By breaking the boundaries of race and gender, as they are traditionally drawn by existential philosophy, and by including writers such as Ralph Ellison, Frantz Fanon, and Toni Morrison, a richer conversation on the nature of the human condition, as well as the possibilities for “being”, will be presented. The course’s primary objective is to read existential philosophy across race and gender. Writing proficiency is required for a passing grade in this course. UH347 Political Theories of Love

UH, W

Hours 3

What is a political theory of love? What does a politics of love look like? What is it a love of? Country? Justice? Fellow citizens? Should the concept of love serve as a starting point for thinking politically? Or should it, above all other things, be avoided as a starting point for thinking politically? These are just some of the questions that the tradition of political theory, stretching back to Plato’s Republic, has sought to answer in many different ways. This course will explore such questions and some of the ways that they have been approached by various writers. Writing proficiency is required for a passing grade in this course. A student who does not write with the skill normally required of an upper-division student will not earn a passing grade, no matter how well the student performs in other areas of the course.

Hours 3

This course will explore the intersections between political theory and environmentalism. When these two fields are brought together, there are interesting questions to be asked about humanity's historically sovereign relation to, and role in, nature: What is the nature of freedom amidst so many environmental crises? How do we alter our value systems to better reflect environmentally sustainable behaviors? Do we pursue revolution or reform? This course will survey the spectrum of Green political theories, including eco-liberalism, eco-socialism, eco-anarchism, eco-feminism, eco-terrorism, etc., and explore the myriad ways people have rethoughted present and future politics in relation to the environment. UH349 The Neighbor

UH, W

Hours 3

"Love your neighbor as yourself." Why? Do they deserve it? And who is my neighbor? When Christ was asked, "Who is my neighbor?" a line of questioning was begun that has since populated the writings of authors such as Augustine, Friedrich Nietzsche, Soren Kierkegaard, Fyodor Dostoevsky, and Sigmund Freud to contemporary thinkers such as Cornel West and Slavoj Zizek. It is an ethic that has been both celebrated and critiqued. In either form, the category of "the neighbor" provides a productive starting point to begin thinking politically, economically, psychologically, and theologically. This course will examine classic texts that engage the concept of love of the neighbor in order to trace its historical development as a social and political concept. Writing proficiency is required for a passing grade in this course. UH351 Radical Stitches: Forming Identity through the Creation of Texts

UH, W

Hours 3

This course will focus on women’s texts and explore how women form notions of identity and community through the production of various texts, including quilts, gardens, cookbooks, and diaries. Students will question the gendering of particular crafts and how this affects their cultural knowledge and reading of these texts. Major projects for this course will include a biographical/historical sketch, an oral history project, and a final written project. Writing proficiency is required for a passing grade in this course. Hours 3

This course will examine the texts and traditions of women writers from the American South. Through close reading and writing, students will analyze the use of autobiography in these texts, exploring how writing as a southerner and as a woman shapes one’s work and achievement. Students will read works by some of the most distinguished writers of the last two centuries—including Zora Neale Hurston, Eudora Welty, Alice Walker, and Ellen Douglas, as well as lesser known writers. As students read and write, they will also discuss their own experiences of the South, its people, and its narratives and how they choose to interact with them. Writing proficiency is required for a passing grade in this course. A student who does not write with the skill normally required of an upper-division student will not earn a passing grade, no matter how well the student performs in other areas of the course.

Hours 3

This course will explore the literary and historical development of American Dream(s) through narratives in American Literature. This course will engage with narratives throughout American history focusing on the narrative’s power to define and develop social norms but also enact social change. Students will develop a vocabulary for discussing the relationships between narratives and social change and analyze written and oral narratives and the cultural and historical contexts that surround them. Students will concentrate specifically on narratives of marginalized people in American Literature. This course will examine how narratives are used to create connections, educate, inform, and inspire readers/listeners/viewers. Writing proficiency is required for a passing grade in this course. This course surveys the deep historicity, the cultural diversity, and the political-economic complexity of contemporary African societies from the early post-independence period to the present day. This course will examine the Atlantic slave trade, colonialism and African nationalism as foregrounded historical events that have shaped modern Africa while also insightfully examining them from Africana perspectives and standpoints. The range of themes considered within the course include: the status of African development and democracy in a global era, modern innovation in Africa and its effect on African societies, western constructions of Africanity, the role of gender in the experiences of ordinary men and women; the nature of authority in indigenous polities; the ongoing effects of the European scramble for Africa and African responses; contemporary cultural expressions; and the economic, social, and political realities and challenges of modern global Africa.

UH355 Afro-Asian Studies

UH

Hours 3

Paul Gilroy’s The Black Atlantic: Modernity and Double Consciousness (1995) explores the global Black experience and Black identity formations through a transatlantic frame. Gilroy’s thesis argues that contemporary black identity constructions are a result of ongoing processes of travel and exchange between Africa, Europe, and the ‘New World’ during earlier periods of capital accumulation (transatlantic slavery and colonialism). This course disrupts Gilroy’s thesis, repositioning the focus, temporally and spatially, eastward. Students will examine often underexplored relations and routes of passage and exchange between the African continent and the peoples of Japan, China, India, the Pacific Islands, the Middle East, among other nations. The course may alternately consider any of the following propositions: (a) historical and contemporary Africa-Asia (Africa-China) relations, (b) the reasons for dispersal and processes of creating new Afro-Asian identity formations, or (c) issues of cultural continuity, nostalgia, solidarities, and belonging between Africana and Asian communities.

UH361 One Nation Under God

Hours 3

How did the United States, founded as colonies with profoundly religious aspirations, come to be the first modern state whose commitment to the separation of church and state was reflected in its constitution? From the election of 1800, when Federalist clergymen considered Deist Thomas Jefferson unfit to lead a "Christian nation," to today, when religion again plays an unmistakable role in political identity, it has been a crucial and constant element in American politics. This seminar is meant to reconstruct the complicated connections of religion and politics in American history in order to enable the participants to develop a well-reflected and solid position in this embattled field.

UH362 A Divided America

Hours 3

The class will focus on issues that divide Americans where they live, work, study, worship, and vote. These issues arise due to the demographics of age, sex, nationality, and race. Students will seek to identify the history of the divisive issues as they arise from ethical, economic, social, geographic, and moral conditions. Students will research each topic, analyze various “think tank” approaches to each issue, and interview persons involved in the divisive issues. This analysis will be reduced to a bullet point paper of the major issues. The class will identify and discuss through collaborative discussions the bullet point issues both nationally and in states. Students will face off in class discussions of transdisciplinary solutions to each divisive issue as they face their unrecognized biases that often dictate beliefs.

In both national and local governments, lobbying scandals make the news. Public corruption in national and state governments have caused public distrust in our democracy. Three impeached Presidents, a Vice President and two removed Speakers of the House of Representatives in Congress and convicted Congressmen were but a prelude for corruption and scandals in the states. Two Alabama Governors were convicted of corruption while the Speaker of the House was convicted from a 23-count indictment. South Carolina, Illinois, Texas, Louisiana and many other states have experienced similar misdeeds. Lobbyists have replaced the press as the 4th influence on politics, why? This class seeks to introduce Honors College students to questions of truth, validity, ethics, subjectivity, and form that ground social science. It will do so by exploring the philosophical foundations of qualitative inquiry, popular and critical methodological traditions, and the methods and processes students might use to engage in research. Students will think with the theories that inform qualitative research while also reading and exploring transdisciplinary qualitative work in order to develop a research proposal for their own qualitative study, which they might implement in their discipline, during graduate education, or as a culminating honors experience. UH367 Doctors Who Write: Medicine, Mortality & Literature
UH

Hours 3

This course explores the connection between medicine and literature, largely (but not exclusively) through the works of a selection of well-known doctors-turned-writers. How does the practice of medicine, with its diagnostic emphasis, its balance of rationality and empathy, and its relentless proximity to human weakness and mortality affect the doctor/writer's literary and philosophical concerns? Conversely, how might the reflective, imaginative craft of writing influence the practice of medicine? More specific questions to be explored might include: how do William Carlos Williams' twin vocations of rural doctor and poet set him apart from his literary contemporaries? How might the archetypal characters of Holmes and Watson represent the balance doctors must strike between reason and empathy in the stories of Arthur Conan Doyle? What happens when a doctor becomes a patient? How does it change the way they approach mortality? Why is illness such a powerful cultural and literary metaphor?

UH381 Gossip and Rumor: Featuring Social Change and Social Media

UH, W

Hours 3

Gossip and rumor are essential, powerful and subversive forms of human communication, yet their roles in society are commonly overlooked, dismissed or trivialized. This class examines their history, morality, psychology, vital agency in social change, commercialization and ethics, the mass media's amplification of them and their role in our closest circles, workplaces and organizations. This class will also look to their future given the immense impact of social media on interpersonal communication. Writing proficiency is required for a passing grade in this course. A student who does not write with the skill normally required of an upper-division student will not earn a passing grade, no matter how well the student performs in other areas of the course.

Prerequisite(s): UH 200 OR UH 205 OR BUI 102 OR GBA 271 OR GBA 272 OR IDMD 102 OR RRS 201 OR (UFE 201 AND UFE 202) OR (EPIC 201 AND EPIC 202)

UH382 Thomas Paine and Revolutionary Writing

UH, W

Hours 3

English radical Thomas Paine (1737-1809), writer and thinker but more writer than thinker, is author of the most influential and distinctly "American" revolutionary ideas and roadmaps, best selling author of the 18th century, a significant factor in both the American and French Revolutions and pioneer of modern democracy. This class will look at his life, character, times, influences, ideas, works and legacy and compare him to other revolutionary writers. Writing proficiency is required for a passing grade in this course. A student who does not write with the skill normally required of an upper-division student will not earn a passing grade, no matter how well the student performs in other areas of the course.

UH383 Bohemianism

UH

Hours 3

This course will explore what has come to be known as "Bohemianism" as a lifestyle and a state of mind via theoretical and imaginative texts and films. Students will study the artistic and cultural movements and phenomena that both inspired and were inspired by these texts beginning with the origins of the term "bohemia" and examining how and why it came to be associated with artists, writers, and musicians. In addition, students will consider the relationship between "bohemia" and mainstream culture, to include the actual "mainstreaming" of bohemia (oxymoronic, no?), or "fauxhemia."

Prerequisite(s): UH 200 OR UH 205 OR BUI 102 OR GBA 271 OR GBA 272 OR IDMD 102 OR RRS 201 OR (UFE 201 AND UFE 202) OR (EPIC 201 AND EPIC 202)
