COURSES FOR RELIGIOUS STUDIES

RELIGIOUS STUDIES COURSES

REL100 Intro To Religious Studies
Hours 3

Various methodological approaches to the academic study of religion, with examples of religious life and thought drawn from a variety of cultures. This course is required of all majors and minors.

REL101 The Violent and the Sacred: Religion and the Problem of Human Suffering
Hours 3

This introductory course examines the question of how do we academically study the socio-cultural constructs that we call "religion" and "violence" by examining theories & theorists of each as well as academic disciplines that study them, all in order to examine their possibly common elements and intersections. The course therefore examines theories of evil, violence, and hatred, using historical and contemporary case studies on such topics as terrorism and genocide.

Prerequisite(s): N/A

Prerequisite(s) with concurrency: N/A

REL102 Intro to Religions of the World
Hours 3

This comparative study of religions highlights complexity in world religions. Topics, such as texts, practices, and deities, organize the study of different pairs of religions.

REL103 Religion in the News
Hours 3

This introductory level course examines the place and function of religion in modern culture by examining the way stories are (or are not) identified as religious in news media. Drawing on various historical examples—from print to digital media—the course introduces students to the academic study of religion through case studies of how religion is commonly represented in the media, paying particular attention to the possible motives and practical consequences to classifying claims, actions and organizations as religious or not. As part of the core curriculum, this course addresses the ability of students to deal with questions of values, ethics, or aesthetics as they are represented in the humanistic fields of learning regarding the study of religion, film, art, music, and online media. The course is broad in scope and takes a global perspective on religion and popular culture as well as the relationship between all points of view on these subjects. The emphasis of the course is the history and appreciation of religion and popular culture.

Prerequisite(s): None.

Prerequisite(s) with concurrency: None.

REL104 Religion in Pop Culture
Hours 3

Instead of assuming that religion is a distinct aspect of the human, one that interacts only with elements of elite or high culture, this course examines the ways that the beliefs and behaviors that we commonly classify as religious are a part of everyday culture—particularly, the ways that they are produced by and in turn influence popular culture. Myths, rituals, and traditions circulate all throughout mass culture via print, radio, television, and now the web. The course therefore introduces students to a set of recent, historical examples where the scholar of religion can shed light on the workings of contemporary day-to-day life. As a part of the core curriculum, this course addresses the ability of students to deal with questions of values, ethics, or aesthetics as they are represented in the humanistic fields of learning regarding the study of religion, film, art, music, and online media. The course is broad in scope and takes a global perspective on religion and popular culture as well as the relationship between all points of view on these subjects. The emphasis of the course is the history and appreciation of religion and popular culture.

Prerequisite(s): None.

Prerequisite(s) with concurrency: None.

REL105 Honors Intro Relig Stdy
Hours 3

Honors version of REL 100.

REL110 Intro To The Old Testament
Hours 3

Introduction to the books of the Old Testament, or Hebrew Bible as it is known in Judaism, in their historical setting, with emphasis on textual analysis and on literary forms and their function and use in the past and present.

REL110 Intro To The New Testament
Hours 3

Introduction to the Hellenistic world of early Christianity, examining the early traditions about Jesus that were organized into the Gospels and the letters of Paul.

REL120 Religion and Science
Hours 3

This course is a broad, interdisciplinary introduction to the ways in which "science" and "religion" have been defined. In particular, we will focus on the ways that these concepts have been co-constructed, focusing on their varied relationships throughout history. We will look at uses of the terms in the history of science, the impact of the scientific revolution on understandings of nature and gender, the shifting significance of science and religion from scientists and philosophers who advocate for science as religion, and the use of the natural sciences (in particular cognitive science) in religious studies. We will analyze the varied ways (including in contemporary debates) in which these terms are used and the values implicit within these uses.
REL124 Religion & Film in America
Hours 3
Uses film as the way into understanding the religious scene in America’s broad set of ideas, symbols, social movements, and institutions that affect and are affected by the wider American culture.

REL130 Religion, Politics, and Law
Hours 3
This introductory level course examines the construction of religion through law, politics, and the nation-state. Students are introduced to the role of religion in liberal political theory, secularism, and the modern rise of the nation-state. Beginning with the Enlightenment, “religion” posed a challenge to liberal democracy in the West. This course tracks the history of how states have attempted to answer that challenge and the theories political thinkers have proposed. This course will be particularly helpful to students interested in religious studies, history, political science, law, and philosophy.

REL208 Hinduism
